„SER“ BY URNA & KROKE RELEASED ON NOVEMBER 11TH 2018

URNA Chahar-Tugchi finally releases her new album: "Ser" – "Awakening, recorded with the Polish band Kroke.

Blessed with an extraordinary voice, URNA has the ability to directly communicate with her listeners through her music, transcending all linguistic and cultural barriers with her dynamic, soaring vocals. Her songs evoke the immense grasslands of Mongolia and relate stories about the Nomadic way of life. Born into a family of nomadic herders in the Ordos grasslands of Inner Mongolia, URNA carries the spirit of her homeland in her music as she performs around the world. While being rooted in the traditional music of her homeland, URNA continues to take her music to new directions.

Her latest compositions emphasize free, brushstroke-like improvisations, which have been inspired by her many years of experienced encounters with other cultures and musicians and her life in the world.

With this constant yearning to take the music beyond convention, URNA has performed with many internationally renowned musicians, and her forth coming album "Ser" (Awakening) with KROKE - where they present their common arrangements and performance of unique compositions - is a shining example of this.

Kroke is a group that has been a roaring success on numerous stages throughout the world for over 25 years. Initially associated solely with Klezmer music, in their current works Kroke draw inspiration from ethnic music using their own improvisations. This way they create their unique style which floats across borders, forms and time. Kroke's music was not only noticed by a wide audience, but also appreciated by artists around the world.

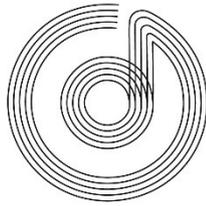

SER has been recorded in Poland at the NLD and Radio Kraków Studios, mixed and mastered by the sound engineer Dariusz Grela.
